

Do you or your loved one suffer from Vitiligo?

Vitiligo is a skin condition in which there is a loss of color (referred to as depigmentation) from areas of skin. This results in uneven white patches that have no pigment, but the skin feels normal.

If you answered yes to the above question, you may be interested in a research study evaluating an investigational treatment.

For more information regarding participation in the study please contact the clinical trial department at Dermatology, Laser and Vein Specialists of the Carolinas at 704-973-3606.

Men and women who meet the following eligibility criteria may qualify:

- Must be 18 years of age or older.

- Vitiligo that has not changed in the past 12 months.

- The patient has not had UVB/light therapy for their Vitiligo within the past 6 months.

- The patient has not had topical treatments (such as steroids) for their Vitiligo within the past 60 days.

Participants may be compensated for their time and travel.
